ECHOES

Elon College High School

Alma Mater

Here is the scene of the student's labors, and pleasures. Here have they learned English, Math, French, etc.--but that is not all. Here, too, have they worked on extracurricular activities, formed lasting friendships, the memories of which will be bright for many years.

Dedication

*Best Wishes -
Mr. M^r*

Because of his unfailing help, and interest in ourselves, our work, our school, our progress and our future, we fondly dedicate our yearbook, ECHOES, to our principal, Mr. L. S. McDonald.

Administration

Principal, Mr. L. McDonald; Secretary, Mrs. Ed Nash

Dear Students:

You are to be complimented on the interest you have shown and the work you have done in the production of this yearbook. Not content with the former editions of the "Echoes", excellent as they have been, you have endeavored to make a better book. I have observed the many fine characteristics of your work and congratulate you.

In your school you have much to be thankful for, and in turn, much to be responsible for. Your duty as a student is to be loyal to yourself and to your school in every way. To remove deficiencies, to supply inadequacies and to mend flaws are a part of your obligation. To rejoice in achievement, to take pride in accomplishment and to glory in successful performance are the rewards of your labors. To reach bravely for what is beyond your immediate grasp is to grow in service to yourself, your school and your community. I charge you with these responsibilities.

To you, members of the graduating class, this book will be a treasure-chest of memories-memories of happy days and of lasting friendships. To others it will be a milestone in your progress toward your goal. My best wishes are with you all.

Sincerely your friend and principal,

Leland S. McDonald

LAST WILL AND TESTAMENT

We, the Senior Class of Elon High School, being of feeble mind and disposing disposition; and being on the verge of abandoning these stately halls of learning, do make this our last will and testament hereby declaring null and void all other wills or promises extracted from us under pressure.

ARTICLE I

To our dearly beloved faculty we leave our splendid grades and good behavior to the end that we are living examples of all that may be good and studious, held up by them to inspire the oncoming class to reach the goal that we have attained.

ARTICLE II

To the Junior Class we leave all our Senior privileges, our Senior dignity and the pleasure of getting out the annual. The first will be gained by bestowal, the second by acquisition, the third by perspiration.

To the Sophomores, because of their dire need, we leave our brilliancy and "pep", with sincere hopes that they may use them both in Literary and Athletic fields.

To the class of '52 we bequeath all our science and English notebooks to relieve them of the customary weeping and gnashing of teeth caused by such necessary evils.

ARTICLE III

Dail Kimrey bequeaths to Eugene Curtis his height as the said legatee needs just this amount to make him of average size.

To Fay Tickle, Jean Simmons generously leaves her pleasing smiles and cheerful disposition.

Bobbie Abernathy leaves the echoes of her giggles and hearty laughs to the resounding halls of the school building.

Joanne Martin wills her record of straight "A's" to Glenn McDonald in hopes that they will lighten his pathway during the dark and gloomy days ahead.

Bill Morton leaves the copyright of his latest manuscript, "Shiek and Ye Shall Find," to Douglas Turner that Doug may be as successful as he was along this line.

Grace Hedegepeth wills her supply of jokes and miscellaneous news to Carol Loman. The legatee will find this useful for causing the teachers temporarily, or even permanently, to forget Monday morning written lessons.

Claire Cox wills her compact and all other beauty accessories to Sara Jean Burge.

Janice Goodman bequeaths Adrian Wilson to "Tink" Hill with the request that she keep his mouth closed on windy days.

Bobby Whitesell wills his gavel to Richard Sneed in hopes that he doesn't have to pound as hard as he did.

To C. A. Reagan Joe Hill leaves his football and hopes he gets a big "kick" out of it.

Tommy Salmons wills his red shirt, corduroy that is, to Cooper Walker to lighten up the halls on gloomy days.

Jimmy McCloud wills his brain and all his knowledge of science to Ray Hook.

To Mildred Whitesell Dorothy West leaves her quiet manner and unassuming ways with the request that she put them to use in the near future.

Christine Oakley leaves her dignity as a Senior to Betty Lou Curtis.

Betty Wagoner bequeaths all her poems to the school library to be used by the students while idling away the hours.

Buddy Fogleman wills his grease paint and important rolls in forthcoming productions to Bill Batten.

Louise Currin bequeaths all her cooking knowledge to Miss Ridge because she's such a good "egg".

Ann Buckner leaves her ability on the dance floor at the teenage parties to Martha Dowdy.

Carolyn Braxton receives from her sister, Peggy, her soprano voice and her ability to reach high "C".

Betty Lou Rudd leaves her good sportsmanship to Nell Somers and hopes she will live up to it in every way.

Doris Black bequeaths her Athletic title to Norma Robertson and her job as manager to Peggy Longest and promises she will always be with the team cheering in spirit from the side lines.

In testimony whereof, we hereby appoint as executor of this, our last will and testament, Mr. L. S. McDonald, with assurance that anyone failing to abide by any of the provisions of said document will be severely penalized.

We do hereby subscribe our names and affix our seal this the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and forty nine.

Class Poem

Though the years fly
Swiftly past,
Occasions come
But do not last.

Take what fate
To you doth give,
To be, to hope,
To work, to live.

In forty-five,
We took our place
In high school ranks
To set a pace

That in the coming
Years would prove
A goal to those who
Try to move
Ahead and succeed
In things that fill
The human need.

As forty-seven
Came in view,
We were then Juniors
With plenty to do.

In forty-eight
With Brown in lead
We picked our need,
For loyalty hope and trust
For those below--
Who come after us.

This is the end,
Our school days are o'er
As we pass through
That open door.
May the world outside,
Prove ever to be--
A joy and success,
For you and me.

Dear Diary

The winters are cold and dismal here in North China, the icy winds and snows close one in and leave little else to do except to look back over the past years and remember. I always enjoy this because it allows me to go back to the last of the forties and re-spend my days at E. H. S. Our ole' class of '49 did pretty well for itself.

I heard from Bobby Whitesell at the first of the month. He let me have all the latest goings-on of the class, but being the modest dear that he is, he didn't even mention that he is now the vice-president of the Continental Insurance Company. He always was some what a leader of men. Bobby passed on some happy items about those people with whom I spent so many happy years. It seems that Jimmy McLoud finally decided to put his knack for blue print drawing into good use. He is now a well known architect and interior decorator with the able assistance of Bill Morton. Good ole' Bill, I bet he gives a Perry Como record with every plan he draws. Tommy Salmons is no longer a cheerful dray boy, but now owns his own ultra-modern super market.

And Diary, do you remember how Joe Hill used to say he'd just be an educated bum??? I should have known better, but I wasn't at all surprised to find that he is now a full back for Norte Dame. Of course, he had to change his name a little. I think he is now known by the moniker Joseppi Hillstorivich!! Oh well, Joe always would go to any limits to get to play football.

I heard from Joanne Martin, too. Her letters are few and far between, but so interesting I hate to put them down. She and Claire Cox did all right for themselves. They are listed in the Elon College "Phipsicle" 1959, as associate and assistant professors respectively of art. Claire is still the confirmed bachelor girl, but I hear that Joanne has "prospects"!

Joanne tells me she bumped into "Chris" and the twins (seems Wayne chased her until she caught him) on the Carolina Trailways bus recently. I'll bet they both were surprised to find that their driver was Lester Moore. They probably had a regular class re-union on the company's time.

Dail Kimery now has his own "hash house", but it's under the neon name of "Kimery's Korner" and serves the best ice cream dishes in all of New York. Of course, Madison Avenue isn't a bad location. I'll bet Dail has the prettiest electric signs in town, he used to be pretty good with electrical gadgets.

Doris Black, Louise Currin and Janice Goodman are the prettiest trio of nurses at the Cedars of Lebanon Hospital.

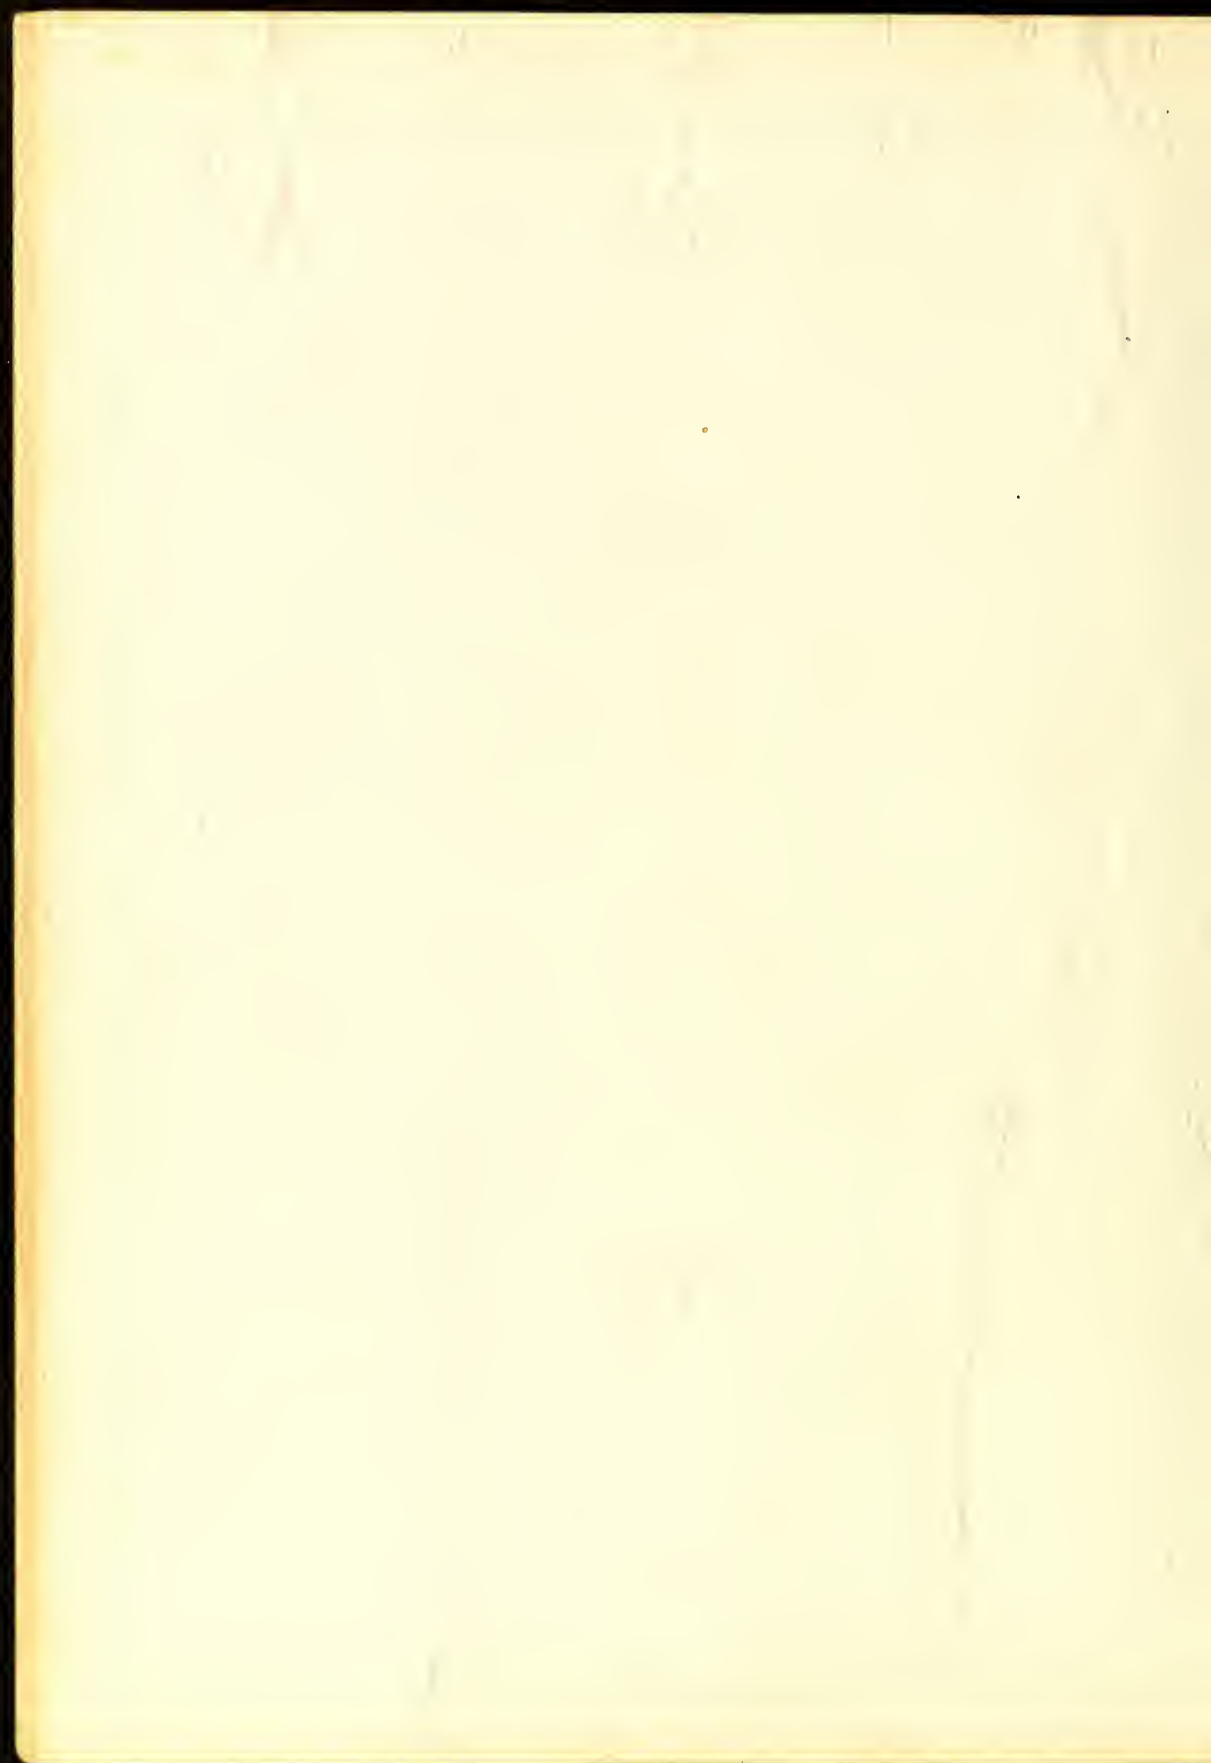

Well, Betty Rudd certainly fooled me! Instead of turning into a champion basketball player-which she could easily have been-she is now one of the prettiest young matrons you'll see.

I tuned in on Arthur Godfreys talent scout the other night and who should I hear but my old pal Anne Buckner, who used to make my study halls such a riot. Vera Vague had better cling to her laurels 'cause Annie has all the makings of a great little comedian.

Dorothy West donned white, too, and is now at Hillsdale Sanitorium in Tacoma, Washington. I'll bet her calm and easy manner is soothing balm to the frayed nerves of its patients. I've always heard that silence was golden and it certainly paid off for Dot.

At long last I got the much-promised letter from Bettie Wagoner, my ole' sidekick, bosom pal, shadow, right arm, etc. for the past fifteen years. She finally got that trip to "deah meddy old England". Jean Simmons is her travling companion. The two are making their merry way across the globe to see yours truly. Boy, I hope they hurry as its been so dull with no Bettie to argue with. Besides, this "new look a la 59" has me in a pickle, and I hear Jean is quite the girl with a needle.

Golly, how some of the class used to razz me about wanting to come to China. They always said if I had to learn to eat with chop sticks I'd starve. Well, I guess I showed them--I can wield those chop sticks like a veteran. Being the private secretary to a Brigadier General at the American Embassy is plenty O. K.

I got a postal from Peggy Braxton and Bobbie Abernathy this morning. They are doing fine with their rose covered cottages and stuff. Peggy played professional basketball for a couple of years--was plenty good, too; but not so Bobbie. She gets married to some lucky guy the second year after she finished at ole' E. H. S.

Well, there it is, Diary, the goals achieved by the class of '49. We really didn't do so badly, did we? We caused a lot of gray hairs to be added to the noble heads of the faculty, but we meant well with all our noise and wise cracks. We were a happy lot and still are. We could always find something at which to laugh. As long as one can do that, one pretty much has the world by the tail already.

This page marks the end of a decade, ten years of golden memories. Looking ahead is always a good motto, and looking back is always a good moral. I remember that as graduation night grew near, I suspected that many of us would have complaints about the future; but by now as I thumb through your well-remembered pages, I feel that we can only have a deep feeling of contentment for the success that has come to us. It hasn't been easy. We had many good opportunities, but they usually came disguised as hard work.

Goodnight Diary,

CLASS HISTORY

On September 7, 1946, forty-six carefree and green freshmen boarded the High School Ship for the far-away port of knowledge. We had had as yet few very trying experiences on the Sea of Learning. It did not take us long to realize that there were seamen on our ship who were more experienced than we--the Sophomores, Juniors and Seniors they called themselves. We organized our class and chose as president, Bobbie Abernathy. Other earsmen who were chosen to help guide our vessel over the rough Sea of Learning were; Vice President-Doris Black, Secretary-Margaret Bayliff, and Treasurer-Nellie Overman.

During the first part of our voyage on board the High School Ship, a social party was given for us by the parents of one of our classmates. When the summons was heard a few months later, a large number of girls and boys entered athletics; but we saved our letters and stars for another trip. Under the very efficient leadership of Mrs. M. W. Hook and other members of the faculty, we entered on June 2, 1947, the port of Freshmen Vacation, a happier and a wiser crew.

After three months of much-needed rest, we were eager to get on board our ship again. We had our same captain, Mrs. M. W. Hook. Our crew numbered thirty-nine, and we organized again under the following leadership: President-Doris Black, Secretary-Harold Robertson, and Treasurer-J. B. Seymour and Tommy Salmons. This was a glorious year. We made the other classes realize that we were capable of hard work and of taking a leading part in real sport. One of the high school cheerleaders, Margaret Bayliff, was from our class. Prominence did not by any means stop here, for we took a very decided lead in scholarship. When we had crossed the waters that lie between the port of Freshman Vacation and Sophomore Vacation, we hailed into the latter for the purpose of taking on food and fuel.

After our ship had remained three months in the port of Sophomore Vacation, we began our voyage again with a crew of thirty three. For this third part of our voyage, the following officers rendered us their efficient services: President-Margaret Bayliff, Vice Presidents-Stephen Wolfe and Christine Oakley, Secretary-Nellie Overman, and Treasurer-Tommy Salmons. We were welcomed by a new captain, Mrs. Helen Miller. Our class was still tops in basketball. Also we showed interest in other activities; Glee Club, Journalism, Dramatics and B² Club. We had our play, "Good Gracious, Grandma," the receipts of which went toward the Junior-Senior banquet and Washington trip.

In order to entertain the Seniors while on the third part of our voyage, we gave them an "April Showers" banquet on April 28 on board our ship. We paid the bill-of-fare value plus compound interest when we should become seniors.

After the next stop had been made, we entered upon the last part of our voyage. We were nothing less than High and Mighty Seniors. Early in the year our class organized with the following officers in charge of steering our vessel: President-Bobby Whitesell, Vice President-Bobbie Abernathy, Secretary-Claire Cox, and Treasurer-Jean Simmons. We organized with twenty-four members. Upon us dropped the responsibility of editing the annual; of setting an example for the lower classmen; and of becoming recipients of Senior privileges. We met another new captain this year--and a very good one--Miss Estelle Brown.

During the happiest and most fruitful year of our voyage (for we had begun to reap what we had sown) the Junior Class entertained us at a banquet. Under the direction of our teacher we gave a play.

We mastered the circumference of Amo, the declension of an isosceles triangle, and the conjugation of the French verb, "l'ecole." We struggled with Math, History, English, French, and Typing courses until it seemed as if we should have nervous prostration; but, behold! Just in front of us-- our reward!

The faculty found great pleasure in accompanying the class of 1949 over the rough waters of the Sea of Learning. Their greatest delight was to give us "pop" tests. These tests were both as unexpected and as disastrous as the Culex mosquito in the Sahara desert. The little green grade books of our teachers testified to this statement.

Our trip to Washington was wonderful. Oh! I almost forgot about our trip to see Shakespeare's "Macbeth!" Although we knew very little about it at the time, we thoroughly enjoyed it.

On June 7, 1949, we completed our voyage through one port of the Sea of Learning and received as spoils of the adventure our high school diplomas.

Since history records the work of the great, this document may well be called a history. For were we not illustrious, seafaring students, struggling as many others have struggled before us? Certainly one will grant that every task assigned to us was performed as faithfully as could have been expected from a class of boys and girls who were equally interested in class work, sports, and every form of diversion.

Both boys and girls came through with a good record this year. The girls won 12, lost 4 and tied 2 to bring them second place up to the tournament. The boys won 9, lost 13. The girls' team loses many of its first string players this year; however, here's luck to the teams next year!
